CROW'S NEST PASS BOARD OF TRADE

At a supper meeting held at the Greenhill Grill on Tuesday evening, an organization to be known as the Crow's Nest Pass Board of Trade was formed, with the following officers: O. A. Botter, Blaimore, president; W. V. Cole (Bellevue), Joe Kubik (Blaimore), H. Sherratt (Coleman), vice-presidents; Harold MacPhail, Blaimore, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Botter, and was addressed by J. W. Colwell, president of the Macleod Board of Trade; L. Cuthbert, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Macleod, and others. Fourteen local district representatives were present, and all were declared members automatically. Among those present were W. Cole, A. Coupland, L. Green, W. Harvey and I. Hayson, Bellevue; O. A. Botter, J. Kubik, H. MacPhail and R. Pinkney, Blaimore; F. Abousaffy, N. Nicholas, R. Pattinson, E. Salvador and H. Sherratt, Coleman. Every miner in the district will be given free full-privilege membership.

With Mr. Botter at the head of it, this new organization should prosper, in the same manner as has everything else he has had a hand in. Mr. Botter is at present agent for the C.P.R. at Burnside.

ALASKA HIGHWAY BOON TO ALBERTA

Recent announcement that the U.S. highway to Alaska will be built through Alberta is regarded as one of major importance to this province, in the opinion of officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

At its last annual meeting, the A. M. A. passed a resolution favoring construction of this highway as speedily as possible, and urged the full co-operation of the governments concerned.

The agreement between the U.S. and Canadian governments provides for this highway being returned to Canadian ownership after the war.

Undoubtedly Alberta will share important tourist benefits from this highway, and it is essential that this province build its highway system up to a standard that will prove attractive to tourists.

Ultimately, thousands of U.S. tourists will travel through Alberta on their way northward and this province will gain in importance as one of the major tourist areas of the Dominion.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

On Saturday afternoon last, Mrs. Robert Littleton lent her home for the regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross.

Mrs. C. J. Bundy is a patient in St. Vincent's hospital at Pincher Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Graham are the proud parents of a son, Colin Lane, born on March 5th in St. Vincent's hospital at Pincher Creek.

Mrs. Ward, of Matachewan, Ontario, is paying an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. Ethel Beuthler, here. This is the first time these sisters have met in forty years.

Gus Neuman, of the R.C.A.F., now stationed at Alymer, Ontario, spent the week end with Sgt. David Murphy and family. David is stationed at Hamilton, Ontario. Gus is a 5th-year Creek boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bonarts are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Anna May, in St. Vincent's hospital, on March 11th.

Micky Porter, of the R.C.A.F., Calgary, is visiting his parents here.

Mrs. Frank Lynch-Stanton, Lundbreck, has been called to Kelowna, B.C., owing to the illness of her father, who is 80 years old.

A very successful wheel drive in aid of the Red Cross was held at the home of Deart Smith on Friday night. A substantial sum was added to the fund.

Sergt. Ted Betts, of De Winton, is visiting his brother Arthur and family here. Ted brought word of a six months old daughter, born in England, that he hasn't seen yet.

Mrs. Mike Evans and infant son, at Lethbridge, are spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Burn, at Lundbreck.

The congregation of the United church on Sunday morning last was favored with a violin solo by Master Teddy Moser, of Hillcrest. He was accompanied at the piano by Albert Christie, of Bellevue.

Miss Nellie McWilliam and Miss Sylvia Murphy attended the teachers' meeting and banquet in Pincher Creek on Saturday afternoon. Miss Murphy was elected one of the delegates to go to Lethbridge to help make arrangements for the Easter convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Heaton, of Maycroft, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son on March 9th. Ed. Smyth has received word that he has captured a first prize in commercial barley at the Edmonton spring fair. At this same fair a year ago, he won first prize in commercial wheat, and at the Calgary exhibition last year he won third and fifth in commercial wheat grade.

Local citizens are quite excited about the trainloads of American engineers, workmen and army trucks passing through town on their way to their camps, where they will begin immediate operation on the American-Alaskan highway.

The whist drive held on Wednesday evening under auspices of the Red Cross was well attended. Honors were won by Mrs. Harry Smyth, Mrs. Geo. Porter, Dick Alexander and Harry Mundle. Mrs. Leslie Day and Mrs. H. Smyth were on the refreshment committee. Leslie Day acted as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Day supplied piano music for the dance that followed.

J. H. Riley, 62, pioneer resident of Calgary, passed away on Monday night after a brief illness. Mrs. Frank H. Holmes, of Pincher Creek, is a sister.

At the inquest into the death of Julia Mayerchak, held Wednesday at the Blaimore court house, the jury returned an open verdict, stating that the girl died from internal hemorrhages caused by being struck by a truck. Vendor, alleged driver of the truck, has been released on bail of $5,000, and will come up for preliminary hearing at Coleman on Wednesday next.

"Fill her up" will become an unfamiliar phrase when gasoline rationing goes into effect in Canada on April 1st. For each coupon the service station attendant detaches from your book, shown here, he will deliver one unit of gasoline. If you want only half a unit, the seller can bisect a coupon along a perforated line. When the plan was first announced it was thought a coupon would be for five gallons, but the shortage is becoming more acute and no one can predict how much it will represent.

BLAIRMORE-FRANK VICTORY LOAN EFFORT REWARDED

Citizens of Blaimore and Frank are to be congratulated upon the result of their Victory Loan effort. With a start on Monday next and will con-population of less than two thousand in the unit, the fine total of $195,650 was subscribed to the loan by 312 persons.

The 1941 loan was subscribed to by 312 citizens for a total of $192,400, so while only four less persons subscribed to the second loan, they purchased $3,250 more than in the first.

Certain credits are still due to this district for the subscriptions made through the payroll savings plan. A number of bonds were purchased by employees of the C.P.R., the Dominion and provincial governments and others, and these amounts when credited to this district will probably bring our total for the Second Victory Loan to $200,000 or more.

The success of the campaign was very materially helped by certain merchants and citizens who donated goods and services, resulting in the expenses of the local drive being kept to a very low minimum. Thanks of the committee particularly go to Messrs. F. M. Thompson Co., the Blaimore Pharmacy and Sartoris Lumber Co. for materials supplied free; to F. M. Thompson Co. and Mrs. Chappell for flags, bunting, etc., for decoration purposes; to "Lucky" Leskovsky for the splendid design which showed the daily progress of the campaign; to the Blaimore High School art class for a number of splendid posters; to Father Harrington and the high school boys for services rendered in connection with the opening show in the Columbus hall; to the West Canadian Collieries Limited, the Canadian Legion, Andy Oliva, Joe Fumagalli and Mrs. Gillis for furniture and fixtures for the local unit headquarters; and last, but not least, for the splendid publicity provided free of charge by our local newspaper, The Blaimore Enterprise, and the mimeographed Pass Daily Herald. The committee asks all those mentioned above, and any others who assisted in any way, to accept their thanks for such valuable assistance.

From the weekly newspaper offices of Canada there have volunteered for active service 113 men.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Joe Chan, Hillcrest-Bellevue School District No. 1336, was one of the winners in the poster competition conducted in Alberta schools in connection with the Victory Loan campaign. The posters were judged by art teachers in Calgary schools under the supervision of F. G. Buchanan.

Arthur Grande, Ross Carlson, Joe Chan, Norma Dudley and Jack Dudley, of Hillcrest, and Bill Spence, of Maple Leaf, motored to Lethbridge on Saturday to see the semi-final playoff game between Lethbridge and Kimberley.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Makin and son Billy motored to Calgary on Saturday to see the semi-final playoff game between Calgary and Trail.

LAC Milton Harding, of Calgary, was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. McDougall. He left the early part of the week for Ontario, where he will take a special course.

The Michel boys' basketball team defeated Hillcrest 29 to 24 in a game in the local gym on Friday. After the game the visitors were entertained at a party in the Catholic hall.

Mrs. G. Mattock, of Champion, has taken up residence here with her husband, who is employed with the Hillcrest-Mohawk Collieries.

Mary Barnek is confined to her bed through illness.

Ricardo D'Amico, wireless instructor, who is stationed at Calgary, was here on a brief furlough.

The Hillcrest Victory Loan committee, consisting of John Panek, John Mackie and Philip McNeil, who co-operated with the Bellevue committee, went over the top on Saturday. People of Hillcrest subscribed generously to the $54,000 raised.

The Hillcrest-Mohawk tipple men have agreed to work a ten-hour shift instead of eight hours as formerly.

D. Hutchison, who has been employed at Claresholm for the past two years, is visiting his family here.

The Alberta government turned down a plea to have Labor represented on a board of inquiry into the affairs of the Workmen's Compensation Board, despite the fact Labor is most interested in the Compensation Act. E. O. Duke, member for this riding, supported the proposal to have a labor representative appointed.

Post-War Economy

Winning the war is now our greatest concern, and will be until victory is attained, but it has been pointed out by many statesmen that we must start now to prepare for the vast post-war problems which will confront us. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt in the Atlantic Charter, have outlined in broad terms, the kind of world we hope to establish when we are again at peace, but it will fall to individual governments to work out detailed plans for the solution of many of the problems that will arise. Canada had not long emerged from the depression when war broke out. For nearly a decade we had struggled with an unemployment problem of great proportions, and there is no need to review the hardship and suffering that reached into so many of our homes at that time. Its effects were widespread and its social aspects have been driven home to us in force because of the large numbers of our young men who have proven unfit for military service, in many cases because of some form of malnutrition. After enduring the hardships which a prolonged war will inflict on both civilians and those in the armed services, it is unthinkable that we should again have a period of unemployment and insecurity, if by planning now it can be avoided.

Careful Planning Needed

When the war ends, large numbers of our citizens now employed in munition plants and other war projects will be released from their occupations, and at the same time large numbers of soldiers, sailors and airmen will be ready to return to civilian life. It is evident that it will take wise and careful planning and a great deal of organization to take care of conditions at that time. Plans for a gradual demobilization have been discussed and already machinery has been set up to assist soldiers who have been discharged from the Canadian Army since the beginning of the present war. In dealing with these cases, officials are gaining experience in solving problems which will arise on a large scale after the war. The Unemployment Insurance Act, now in force, will be firmly established by the time the war is over and it will no doubt play a large part in helping to bridge the gap between a war and peace economy. The Canadian government, like that of Great Britain, is preparing plans to cope with post-war problems in a comprehensive manner. Mr. Churchill, in a recent speech in Parliament, drew attention to the necessity for consideration of conditions that may arise after the war and he warned that a sudden and unexpected victory is not impossible. If this happened, it should not find us without plans for the future.

Land Settlement Scheme

The Canadian Government has placed Hon. Ian MacKenzie in charge of preparations to deal with post-war problems, and Mr. MacKenzie is now developing a land settlement scheme which he recently told the House "will be found to be one of the most constructive and far-reaching proposals of its kind ever submitted to parliament."

It is understood that the plan will be administered by the Soldiers' Settlement Board, of which Mr. Gordon Murchison is the director. This Board has functioned for the past twenty years and it is felt that long experience has acquainted its members with the shortcomings of earlier legislation, and that they are well fitted to capably administer the new Act. Based on more generous terms than those given to the veterans of the last war, the scheme will provide for returned men to establish themselves on farms, or in suburban homes with large garden plots, should they not wish to devote their whole time to farming. This is among the first of many constructive plans that will be developed, and there is no doubt that Canada must repay those who are working and fighting now in the cause of freedom with employment and security when the victory is won.

Could Be Prevented

Canadians spent more on illness during 1941 than the total cost of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Figures show the cost of the latter was $25,000,000 while the amount expended on sickness was $25,000,000. Every day there are 50,000 Canadian workers absent from their jobs through sickness, and health authorities say that 50 per cent. of this illness is preventable.

A Real Achievement

Birmingham Warship Week was an unequalled success, and the fact that more than £10,000,000 was raised is an achievement that redounds to the credit of the city, says the Birmingham Post. It has to be remembered that in all these efforts Birmingham has consistently set itself a more and more difficult task. To obtain £10,000,000 in a week was an accomplishment that has not been previously equalled.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army By Alan Maurice Lewis

In the Great War of 1914-19 a common plebeian was to suggest that if a man was a blacksmith in civil life he made him a cook in the army. Actually I never can across an instance, although there were times while struggling with a recalcitrant piece of plum duff I thought that the cook would probably make a good blacksmith. There is no doubt, however, that the Army in earlier days, in common with private business, very frequently employed a man in the wrong place because it didn't know his capabilities.

"Then days have gone forever." To-day the Individual Citizen's Army needs individual citizens into a composite force of specialists each employed in his proper sphere. And this doesn't happen by accident!

Before very long there will not be a single instance of a square peg in a round hole from Lance-Jack to Lt.-General—we can go even further than that—from Private to Field-Marshal.

I am not sure whether psychology is an art or a science. Probably the psychologists are not sure either, but personnel managers in industry—and don't forget your army is the biggest single industry in Canada to-day—long ago found out that psychologists could improve industry's efficiency and cut down waste of materials, man-hours and man-power by testing the capabilities of applicants for employment.

This is what the Army is doing to-day through the Directorate of Personnel Selection which applies a capability test to soldiers of all ranks in order to determine their fitness for their present job, their capability to undertake greater responsibilities, their aptitude for instruction in specialties. Colonel G. B. Chisholm, M.C. and Bar, of Toronto, heads this personnel selection directorate and he has gathered to serve with him in this important work some of the outstanding men in the Dominion. They arrive at their conclusions by the combination of an interview and what is known as an "M" test.

Those of you who are familiar with general knowledge tests carried out periodically by "Time" magazine will have some idea of what these tests are. There is a difference, however, in that the "M" test, developed after experiments conducted with more than 10,000 Canadian soldiers, is so designed that it discovers the capability of the subject rather than just his general knowledge.

And its conclusions, sometimes combined with other special tests, determine the potentialities of the man tested regardless of his educational standing.

When it was first announced that every member of the Canadian Army would undergo this test considerable trepidation was reported. There was apparently a sort of tribal fear of the arts of the testing man. Largely because many a man who might otherwise have been condemned to the modern equivalent of "foot-slogging"—to-day, as the result of his "M" test, has been trained in one of the many specialties required in a modern army.

For the benefit of this column I was permitted to take this test. I can't tell you what it consists of because there are thousands more yet to try it, but I can tell you, and I am assured by members of the Personnel Selection staff, that my reaction is pretty generally shared, and it was interesting, informative, and a very pleasant experience—in fact when this job is finished I would like to be able to copyright some of the tests and collect royalties from them as excellent parlor games.

Each test is led up to by a short sample which is carefully explained by the examining officer and no man is allowed to race the stop watch until he thoroughly understands the nature of the test he is about to undertake. It is not an "IQ" test—it is a test of capability. It doesn't show entirely what a man knows—if it does show he is capable of learning. The tests are carried out in groups of not more than 50 and there is an assistant examiner for each 15 men.

To us, the individual citizen's army, the "M" test is an assurance that when the Canadian Army has an opportunity to get down to it the right man will be in the right place and the right result may be confidently expected.

Young Trappist Monk Dared Enemy Fire To Aid British

A young Trappist monk who for two years lived in seclusion at the Mount St. Bernard monastery in Leicestershire, England, is one of the heroes of the Libyan campaign.

Father Celsus Flinn, chaplain with the field ambulance, was taken prisoner with other British troops by a German tank column. The monk escaped and, despite enemy fire, drove an army wagon across the desert to British headquarters.

His report resulted in British gunners smashing the enemy column and freeing the other prisoners.

IT'S FUN AND EASY TO PLAY A GUITAR

Diagrams Show Fingering

Fun you don't want to miss—strumming a guitar, while good friends rally around for a song.

You don't have to miss it, of course, for you can teach yourself the guitar.

Accompanying songs is just a matter of learning a few simple chords—played by pressing the upper parts of the strings with your left hand while your right lightly plucks these strings over the sound-hole.

What strings to press, and where, are clearly shown by the dots in guitar diagrams.

These diagrams, which appear in nearly all popular music, represent the guitar fingerboard. They're much like the lesson diagram with our sketch.

The vertical lines are the strings, the others are the cross bars. The string marked "O" is played only with the right hand.

With instruction in technique and fingering (our lesson diagram shows which fingers to use) you soon accompany like an old master, earn "encore" from your friends!

Our 32-page booklet gives diagrams and fingering for basic chords; explains fingerboard, note-reading for guitar, technique and tuning. Has elements of music, seven tunes for practice.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Easy Lessons in Guitar Playing" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg News-Paper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Soldier Artists

War Artists To Record The Army's Growth And Achievements

The Canadian army overseas has its own war artists in the field, contributing with oils and water colors to the pictorial record of the army's growth and achievements.

Three painters were chosen from among men who enlisted as fighting soldiers and they were given 2nd lieutenant commissions. They are: Major C. E. Stacey of Toronto, historical officer at Canadian military headquarters, aids the artists in selecting topics and directing work. The new lieutenants all had high reputations in peacetime as artists.

The paintings done by the artist trio probably will go to Ottawa where Col. A. Fortescue Duguid, director of the historical section at national defence headquarters, is compiling a series of war paintings. In London Mayor C. E. Stacey of Toronto, historical officer at Canadian military headquarters, aids the artists in selecting topics and directing work. The new lieutenants all had high reputations in peacetime as artists.

No Choice Now

Sparrows, starlings, crows, larks, curlews, and even swans—some of them counted inedit in peace times or too small to bother with—are helping to feed Britain at war. Wild birds of all kinds are coming to big markets because of the hard winter, and all are finding buyers.

Australia May Face Invasion By Jap Hordes

London.—The Japanese, taking the conquest of Java for granted, are methodically preparing for their next steps of conquest, on the Asiatic mainland and Australia.

The fall of Java will be the prelude to domination by the Japanese of the Southwest Pacific. Their remaining task will be to destroy opposition in the other islands of the Dutch Indies and the Philippines.

The best the Allies can hope for is a delaying action while they muster their full strength in India and Australia. If the Dutch in Java are able to emulate the shining example of Gen. MacArthur in the Philippines this will keep the enemy forces occupied for a considerable time.

Java's position became hopeless when the Japanese achieved complete mastery of the air and sea. There is no apparent way to prevent the enemy from landing Japanese troops, tanks and artillery pieces as he needs. The stand of the Dutch must be made in the mountainous interior, which offers defence possibilities similar to those of MacArthur on Bataan peninsula.

Looking ahead, the Japanese are making preparations to drive the Allies as far as possible from the scene of their conquest. The campaign in Burma is designed to isolate China and put the Japanese in a solid position at the doorway to India. Whether they will try to invade the latter probably depends on how soon the British can organize that country to fall decisively. In any event, India must be held against the day when the counter-offensive starts.

The Japanese air raids on Northern Australia and its outlying defence zone, including New Guinea, pressure an early Japanese attempt to occupy the northern part of the island continent. It will be of little material value to them, but of intense importance in flanking the Indies when the time comes for the Japanese to defend them.

The Allies will have to operate 2,000 and more miles away from Southeastern Australia. A Japanese attempt to carry their invasion that far is improbable. By land there is almost impossible direct to traverse, with only one route for the Australians to defend, the railroad and highway from Darwin southward. By sea, the Japanese fleet would be far from any possible base, but they will, in a sense, have isolated the Allies and made it equally hard for them to fight their way back to the Indies.

It may be that Southeastern Asia will be the final battleground.

Royal Air Force Cuts Down Nazi Building Program

London.—Royal Air Force raids on Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg, the great German shipbuilding ports, caused so much damage in January and February that the Germans were able to launch only six of 16 scheduled U-boats, Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair told the House of Commons.

"At Wilhelmshaven," he said, "out of eight U-boats due for launching at a certain date only three left the slips."

"At Hamburg only three U-boats were launched instead of eight. And vessels of the type normally launched in two months have been seen kill in the slips after three months."

Royal Canadian Navy Officer Cited For Devotion To Duty

London.—Sub-Lt. Stuart Grant Moore, Royal Canadian Navy, has been mentioned in despatches. It was announced recently. Moore's home is at Vancouver.

The citation, which said he is serving aboard H.M.C.S. Restigouche, praised his "bravery and dauntless devotion to duty when his ship was attacked by enemy aircraft." No other details were given.

Duchess Visits Service Club

London.—The Duchess of Kent visited the British Columbia services club in the heart of London and inspected a canteen jammed with men from all branches of the armed forces.

Gives Four Fighters

London.—Lady MacRobert, who gave $100,000 for the purchase of a bomber last August, has given another $80,000 for four fighters, two of them to be named after two sons lost in the R.A.F.

Will Fight Japanese

Moroe Swear On Korea To Drive Them From Philippines
Washington.—Ten thousand Moros in the Philippines have sworn a solemn oath upon the Koran never to lay down their daggers and swords until the invading Japanese are ejected, Gen. MacArthur reported recently.

MacArthur transmitted to the president a message signed by Alonto, Sultan of Ransaul and a member of the Philippines senate, that 10,000 Moros of Lanao province on the island of Mindanao had sworn the oath and that more fighting men are being sworn every day.

Aircraft Built In Britain Deep Under Ground

London.—Deep under ground, deeper than German bombs have blasted her island sub-soil and rock, Britain is building aircraft.

In what were abandoned mines and quarries a short time ago, the invisible bomber industry is operating on an expanding scale. A few of these secret plants already are in production, others under construction. The ministry of aircraft production warmly describes the total as "skilled men and women are employed."

"The blitz raids gave us the idea," a ministry official explained. "We were 60 feet below the top of an isolated windswept hill, yet we were sitting comfortably in over-stuffed chairs in a carpeted office."

"It is true we have had no heavy raids for a long time now, but none of these underground factories has lost its value," he added. "Through a large glass window we watched girl clerks on the lower floor chalk new entries on large production charts. The figures gave the reader an instant picture of the plants' day-by-day output of secret parts."

Until now the transportation of these chills, dark tunnels into models of industrial architecture has been a closely guarded secret. Trade union officials who came in doubt remained to praise the last word in installations and were sworn to secrecy. So were the few correspondents allowed to inspect one of the smaller production centres in operation and the dusty caverns of another being rushed to completion. Like an oil gusher, the latter will be starting earthenware the flow of aircraft engines and frames within a few weeks.

The large site is a project of formidable dimensions and is requiring some 9,000 laborers to convert it. When it is finished the underground workshops will occupy an area roughly three-quarters of a mile square and 3,000,000 cubic feet of fresh air will be drawn into the workings every minute.

The factory workers, whose number can be given only "many thousands," will go to work on four 50-passenger elevators and two escalators. Ninety feet down they will step into a pleasant blending of coziness and safety.

The mine tunnels are already buttressed with steel and concrete. Bricks and plaster blot out the jagged mine walls. Everything has been brightly painted.

Over-all there is the soft daylight effect of fluorescent tubing used throughout for illumination. The conveniences include tiled washrooms, lockers and a canteen.

Living accommodations for thousands are provided above ground. These quarters are dispersed within a convenient radius of the mine shafts. Each unit will house 1,000 or more.

These are spotless barracks for single workers, or "cottage" for couples. There are day nurseries for children, and movie and recreation halls for everybody.

Wanted Factories Bombed

Residents Of Paris, Especially Workers, Welcome R.A.F. Raids

London.—A statement from the Free French national committee of Gen. Charles de Gaulle declared that all Parisians arriving in London reported that residents of the Nazi-occupied capital "ardently desired" R.A.F. raids on factories in the Paris zone which are working for Germany.

"It is a fact that this opinion, held by all circles in Paris, is held most strongly by workers and their families—that is, those whose lives would be exposed to the greatest danger, the statement said.

Changes In Command

Officers In Various Services In Britain Must Have Proven Ability

London.—In the first announcement foreshadowing a change in British army command ranks since Sir James Grigg became war secretary, the army council called for a report on all officers up to the rank of lieutenant-colonel aged 45 or over.

Instructions calling for the list of officers to be split into three categories—those recommended for retention in their present unit, those recommended for less active employment, and those not recommended for future employment—said the review was to ensure that those at home and abroad "possess qualities essential for the strain and speed of present day warfare."

"It has become evident that there now are a number of officers who for a variety of reasons, are not able to discharge their present duties," the order said.

Among the "variety of reasons" the order mentioned "advancing age, physical or mental slowness, lack of determination or drive, overstrain or unadaptability of temperament or character."

The order said, "All who hold positions of authority and responsibility must possess an adequate degree of physical fitness, energy, mental alertness as well as purely military efficiency."

A similar purge of ineffectual officers is planned by the air ministry, reliable informants said, with both the army and the R.A.F. hereafter aiming at "promoting younger men of proved ability to higher ranks, despite seniority" of others.

The army order stressed that social or personal connections must not be considered by the examining boards. The new action was handled by morning newspapers as one of the biggest stories in weeks.

Must Not Burn Paper

London.—A new salvage order announced by the ministry of supply made it a punishable offence to burn or destroy paper or cardboard. Exceptions permit use of a little paper to kindle fires and disposal of secret government documents.

Award For Captain

London.—Captain Archibald Donald of Montreal whose merchantman won a fierce 40-minute tussle with a Nazi submarine has been awarded the Order of the British Empire.

THEY CAN'T GET HIM DOWN

From the wing of his R.A.F. fighter plane, this pilot waves cheerily to his comrades in the air. He was on patrol over the English channel when he encountered overwhelming German forces and was forced down. But even using the wing of his plane for a life raft, he wasn't downhearted, as his wave would indicate.

LEADS RAIDING FLEET

Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., led the raiding force of United States aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers which smashed enemy bases on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands. A 17,000-ton aircraft carrier, four other warships, 11 auxiliary vessels and 41 aircraft were destroyed by Halsey's force.

Compulsory Training

Decision Of The Divisional Boards To Be Made Final

Ottawa.—Decision of divisional boards on requests for postponements of compulsory military training is final, War Services Minister Thorson said in the House of Commons.

Postponements were granted by the boards which they believed such were in the national interest. The supplies of labor available and the importance of the individual's occupation to the national economy were considered.

By recent amendment to war services regulations the government had given the right to a representative of agriculture to appear before such boards. National labor supply council and national defence department representatives previously had this authority.

Health Of Britain Good

London.—Britain's health has remained "surprisingly good" in the third winter of the war, the ministry of health said in its first report published since the war began. Deaths from respiratory tuberculosis increased, however, to 23,660 in 1940 from 22,299 in 1939. No 1941 statistics were included.

Arrangement Retroactive

Government Arranges Free Transportation To Canada For Soldiers' Families

Ottawa.—Free transportation to Canada for the wives, widows and young children of men in the Canadian overseas armed services will be provided by the Dominion government, it was announced.

The government will pay minimum cost transportation, ocean and rail, to destination in Canada for wives, and children under 18, of personnel returning to this country for discharge or for some other more or less permanent purpose. The same provision is made for widows, and children under 18, where Canadian personnel die abroad.

The arrangement is retroactive to the beginning of the war and application for refund will be received in cases where repatriation has already been accomplished privately.

Want Offensive Methods Used To Boost Morale

London.—The British press is demanding a raised voice that the policy of action be placed in the forefront of the nation's war strategy.

With the depressing picture of Pacific losses before them, more and more newspapers are rallying to the call for a revitalized generalship, daring and imaginative enough to wrest the nation from its defensive complex and the initiative from the enemy's hands.

They base their demands on the belief that wars are won not by postponements but by making and seizing opportunities. They fear that if war-making is left to the enemy things may be worse, not better, than next year.

"Where is counter-strategy?" queries The Evening Standard, one of Lord Beaverbrook's papers. "It will not be sufficient to rely on defence... offence is the only safe course."

"Are we organizing in weapons and tactics and method to be one jump ahead of Hitler instead of Lord Beaverbrook's papers. 'It will not be sufficient to rely on defence... offence is the only safe course.'"

"Concentrate everything on this target," exhorts another of Lord Beaverbrook's papers, The Daily Express. "The weapons that are leaving factory doors should be weapons for present battles... End at once the defensive outlook or it will bring us to the point where we are at capacity for offensive action."

The difficulties of changing from defensive to offensive warfare are realized and the "might-have-beens" of the Pacific are regarded as matters for history to judge, but in Britain to-day there is an army of many hundreds of thousands, some of whom, the press believes, could be used for attack.

Demands for a western front offensive have increased since the small but brilliantly executed parachute troop attack on the German radio location centre at Bruneval north of Le Havre. As a military exploit the northern France raid is not important, but it was welcome concrete evidence to observers that imagination still has a place in Britain's war strategy.

There was in it, some believed, something of the spirit of Drake when he singled the Spaniards' beard at Cadiz, and of the French commander in chief, Foch, who according to a legend of the First Great War, declared: "My right has been driven in, my left is giving ground the situation is excellent, I am attacking," and then he saved Europe on the Marne.

As observers see it, Britons are not calling for a suicidal offensive by a still insufficiently armed force, but they are demanding in a louder voice than ever before that some of the men who jokingly call themselves "Hitler's prisoners" be freed from their defensive role to harry the enemy.

"A few fierce bites on the western front would be more than welcome," caustic Cassandra, The Mirror columnist, writes in calling for more operations such as that of Bruneval. "We have had enough controversy about the ministry of defence—why not military offence for a change?" asks the tabloid Daily Sketch.

Many reasons have been advanced for more sharp and sudden thrusts at the German rear. They represent a great boost to the morale of both the civilians and the army. They keep the enemy on the alert and in doing so lend support to the Russian armies to the east.

Review Is Given Of Air Offensive During February

London.—The Royal Air Force destroyed 102 enemy aircraft against a loss of 160 in operations from Britain and the Middle East during February, the air ministry announced. The ministry's statistical review of the February offensive, in which Canadians played an important part, said activity was restricted on both fronts, but home-based planes carried out operations during 17 days and 16 nights while 49 attacks on 19 targets were made in the Middle East.

Seventeen Axis naval, merchant and supply ships were known to have been sunk or damaged in home waters and both Mediterranean and another 32 vessels were hit by Allied aircraft in the Far East.

It was indicated the Royal Air Force carried out 14 attacks against nine targets in Germany during the month. Navy docks and shipping yards at Kiel were bombed three nights in succession, while Mannheim received two attacks.

The offensive against shipping was on a reduced scale owing to unfavorable conditions over the sea and because of cloud formations which made observation of results difficult. In routine attacks in the North Sea and off the Atlantic coast seven ships were sunk and one was damaged, one "E" boat was set on fire.

In addition, planes of all commands took part in the large-scale attack on the Nazi warships which escaped from Brest, and on their escort. It is believed that German cruisers and many escorting vessels were damaged.

In the Mediterranean area Royal Air Force and naval aircraft sank and damaged 10 Axis ships, including two cruisers, two destroyers, merchant vessels and a tanker.

The figure of 32 ships sunk or set afire or damaged was stated to be "of necessity not complete and lacks confirmation." It did not include damage inflicted by United States aircraft.

Tanks From Canada

To Be Used By Canadian Armored Formations Overseas

Somewhere in England.—The first "Ram" tanks have arrived in England from Canada.

The speedy, heavily-armored cruiser tanks, designed by Maj-Gen. F. F. Worthington of the Canadian army and made in Canadian factories, are to be used by Canadian armored formations overseas.

The first Rams were taken from the ports of arrival by train to the training camps of a Canadian armored division and senior officers were the first to inspect and test them in practice runs. Several hundred Rams will probably come to Britain this year, replacing the tanks used at present.

Empire Airmen

Will Learn The Ways Of The Army And Navy

London.—The Empire's airmen, are going to learn the ways of the army and navy.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, told the House of Commons that under a new arrangement made "to foster co-operation with the services from the bottom," commonwealth air training plan pilots and air crews at present kept an indefinite time at personnel reception centres after arrival from overseas will in the future go to army and navy units and live for a week at each before resuming training.

Plans Post-War Program

Premier Bracken Says Projects For Manitoba Will Assure Employment

Winnipeg.—Premier John Bracken told the Manitoba legislature that plans are being made for a post-war program which would include various public projects to assure employment in the province.

The government program contemplates water power developments, housing projects, forest conservation work, community parks and fishery developments.

A Record Output

Montreal.—Nordyn Aviation Limited, announced that it broke all its previous output records by turning out 32 Harvard advanced training planes last month, representing a total value of about $1,250,000, including government-supplied engines, propellers, and instruments.

BRITAIN'S HEALTH IS STANDING THE STRAIN

One of the most remarkable features of war-time Britain is the maintenance of the people's health, in spite of all the privation, hardships, long working hours and mental anxiety. The population is much fitter than the experts dared to hope at the outbreak of war. The fear of a serious deterioration in health and of the outbreak of epidemics has, so far, proved groundless. If the people's health had shown any serious decline, this would have been reflected in a mounting number of deaths.

Some increase in death rates has been unavoidable, for reasons that have nothing to do with ill health. Air raids have taken a toll of life, while the blackout has been responsible for a growth in accidents, especially motor vehicle mishaps.

Accidents in factories have been more numerous also, because many hundreds of thousands of the new workers had no previous experience in handling machinery and because of the increase in weekly working hours. While the increase in accidents can be attributed to the war, it does not reflect health deterioration. The government has taken steps to reduce the accident rate by enforcing precautionary measures and by discouraging excessively long hours of work which lead to fatigue and ill health.

The toll of life due to disease such as diphtheria, influenza, measles, cancer, rheumatic fever, pneumonia, has shown very little increase. Nor has there been any epidemic of suicides, the figure for which is often an indication of national morale. The rate of suicides has actually fallen. In the first quarter of 1941, the number of suicides in England and Wales was 1,064, against 1,243 in the first quarter of 1939.

Again, the diseases attributed to malnutrition have shown no signs of spreading. Deaths from vitamin deficiency diseases in England and Wales numbered only thirty-three in the first quarter of 1941, compared with twenty-nine in the corresponding period of 1939. Pernicious anaemia was the cause of 692 deaths in March, 1941, against 534 two years earlier. In view of the reduction in food consumption, the absence of any significant increase in deaths due to malnutrition is very encouraging.

Members of St. Anne's Parish will stage their fifteenth annual St. Patrick's entertainment in the Columbus hall on the nights of Tuesday and Wednesday, March 17th and 18th. A three-act play, entitled "Henpecked Henry," will form the major part of the programme, staged by special arrangement with Samuel French, Toronto. Artists will include John Dobek, Henry Galvon, Lawrence Schlosser, Charles Amato, Misses Margaret Yanota, Helen Pozzi, Anne Kubic, Anne Kanik, Ricca Fumagalli, Anne Margatak and Jeanne Ponti. A number of children will take part in minor performances. Orthophonic music between the acts. This annual entertainment is usually well staged and a big attraction, and we look forward to the fifteenth as the biggest and best ever.

NOT ALL GLOOM IN TOURIST OUTLOOK

Ottawa government officials are struggling valiantly to salvage what little they may from the remains of the 1943 tourist industry.

When North America's rubber life was severed by Jap hordes a few weeks ago, it looked like "catastrophe" for this $150,000,000 source of U. S. dollars. Today there are important rays of hope, but the general uncertainty which surrounds present tourist prospects makes intelligent planning and publicity almost impossible.

What now appears to be the outlook may be summarized briefly as follows:

1. There can be no more "official" publicity urging people to travel in Canada until the present highway, rail and transportation impasse is clarified.
2. Canada will probably continue to put its name in front of American "travel lovers on an "if, as and when" basis.
3. The tourist season may be a bumper one in certain areas and for certain modes of travel not affected directly by the rubber shortage.

Careful analysis of the sources of Canada's tourist trade suggests that there are a number of very encouraging features, despite the general gloom.

Already, steamship companies, such as Canada Steamship Lines, report exceptionally heavy bookings. It is expected that the same will be true of Canada's luxury hotels, where well-to-do persons can come by rail and holiday with no inconvenience through lack of motor transportation. The St. Lawrence-Thousand Islands area and others, which are accessible easily by train or steamer, are expected to have as good if not a better crop. Admittedly, Americans will have more money to spend on travel this year than ever before, so that places which can be reached easily and are free from highway "commuting" problems will probably do well.—The Financial Post.

CHURCHILL BOOKLET

A booklet of outstanding and more than topical interest, containing eighteen photographs of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and significant extracts from his speeches, is available, in limited numbers, at the British Library of Information, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City. Orders from Canada should be addressed to the Munson Book Company, Limited, 486 University Avenue, Toronto.

There are thirty-four pages of photographs and text. The booklet is 5 1/2 inches by 4 inches, a convenient size for mailing. On the inside back cover there is a rectangle in which the name and address of the sender may be signed. This booklet sells for ten cents, and may be ordered in quantities of not less than five (fifty cents). This price includes envelopes. Photographs and text have been approved personally by Mr. Churchill.

Official circles have acknowledged total losses of 1,500,000 German soldiers in the Russian campaign, but describe these losses as "absolutely bearable."

One of the most vigorous messages noticed during the recent Victory Loan campaign appeared in the Kimberley News, signed by William Lindsay, chairman of the committee, and addressed to the citizens of that area: "We must win this war. The margin of victory is not going to be any too great. Our government is asking us to lend them $175,000. The Kimberley payroll in 1941 was close to three millions. We are all in it and must do our utmost. The Japs are fighting 24 hours a day with everything they can put into it. We cannot win against an all-out effort with a half-hearted response. Unless we are fools, there will be no savings accounts in Kimberley by the time the Victory Loan closes. Unless we are shirkers, there will be no family which has not made some sacrifice to buy bonds out of their incomes. Neither the fool or the shirker is worthy of the privileges afforded by this country of ours."

STRONG ACTION TAKEN ON JAPS, HUTTERITES

The following resolutions passed at Raymond by a representative gathering of citizens were released for publication on Tuesday of the week.

HUTTERITES—These people were given special privileges to come to Canada previous to and during the last war, when the cry was for more wheat production. The government made the agreement, giving them special privileges as to military exemption.

Strong objection is now being taken, because of their refusal to serve in the armed forces, or to perform labor battalion work in its stead, or subscribe financially to the government to carry on the war.

The demand today is that the government, Dominion or provincial, should serve notice on them that at some future date to be set, title of land should no longer issue to them unless they are willing to accept the responsibility of citizenship which must be accepted by other Canadians.

Canadian people refuse any longer to see their sons sent to war while these isolated islands of people are there to enjoy special privileges, making large profits at the expense of the nation which gives them the special right.

JAPANESE—There is a growing feeling that any movement of Japanese in Canada must be under supervision, and only under supervision, and that they must remain under supervision either by the military authority or Mounted Police in their location. We quite recognize that it is imperative that the Japanese should be removed from the coastal strip where they reside, but instead of allowing themselves to filter into communities as they are now doing in the Raymond district, we demand they be placed in suitable camps where they can be continually supervised, and where they can be formed into labor groups to work under supervision. Any money they earn should go to feed, clothe and house themselves, and to pay for any educational services which may be extended to them.

There can be no objection to the Japanese doing useful labor, but they must not be allowed to establish private rights to property in the new locations they may be sent to during the war.

Canada should refuse right now to allow another race and language problem to develop.

Announcement was made over the week end that a U.S. submarine in the western Pacific had sunk a Japanese destroyer and naval tanker, and put out of action an aircraft carrier and three cruisers.

A demonstration of modern streamlined love-making was staged in a car in front of a well-lighted Blairmore business place on Saturday night. It was so disgusting that many eyewitnesses became sick and had to go home. It is said the young couple have since somewhat recovered.

Orders in council, tabled in Commons, provide for removal of all persons of Japanese origin from protected areas in British Columbia; dusk to dawn curfew for Japanese in protected areas, and surrender by persons of Japanese origin of motor vehicles, ammunition, arms, cameras and radios. One Japanese has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for evading the curfew regulations.

The death occurred in Calgary on Monday of Robert Smallwood, former resident of Blairmore, Corbin and Michel, at the age of 71. Mr. Smallwood was a native of Whitby, England, and a member of Michel L.O.O.F. lodge. For a number of years he conducted a blacksmith shop in Blairmore, prior to moving to Calgary. He is survived by his wife, Ella, and two sons, William and Perry, of Calgary. The remains were laid to rest in a Calgary cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Bellevue-Hillcrest Victory Loan subscriptions went over the top. Coleman also did well, their subscriptions totalling $86,200 for a quota of $68,000.

This is the month of March, and as far as the Crows' Nest Pass is concerned, our average day and night temperature for the past two weeks has been in the neighborhood of 45 to 50 above zero. Robins have not yet been reported, but visitors from the foothills say the gophers are out and that buds on trees are breaking into leaf. This extra heat is driven over here by Hitler, who is hotheaded.

Reproduced in the March 8th issue of the C.P.R. Staff Bulletin is an advertisement that appeared in the Montreal Star on November 18, 1896, announcing special first-class single-fare rates for Thanksgiving. Trains leaving Montreal would stop at Westmount, but through express trains would stop to take on or let off passengers from and to Sherbrooke, Newport, Ottawa, Toronto and points beyond.

The Blairmore Red Cross Society has forwarded $111 to Calgary for the purchase of damage bags for survivors of sunken or wrecked ships. These bags are carried by the convoy ships, and contain warm clothing so badly needed by these men picked up after being shipwrecked by torpedoes.

Steve Cherba, aged 34, resident here for the past year, died at his home on Eighth Avenue north on Thursday last, following an illness of six weeks. He was a native of Hungary and is survived by his wife. The remains were forwarded to Drumheller for burial.

Tickets at reduced fares will be offered by the C.P.R. for the Easter holidays from Thursday, April 2, to Monday, April 6, inclusive, and will be good to return not later than midnight of Tuesday, April 7. The rate will be fare and one-quarter for the round trip.

RENEWED HISTORY OF PANTS

Pants are made for men, and not for women.

Women are made for men, and not for pants.

When a man pants for a woman, she pants for a man, and both succumb. This forms a pair of pants.

Pants are like trouble—they're thinner in summer and different in winter. Even a dog has pants in summer.

Pants may be considered singular or plural, but in many cases nowadays there seems to be no necessity for considering plurality—just this, if a woman wears pants they're considered singular.

When a Scottish barber was engaging a new assistant, he pointed out: "I pay lower wages in the summer because the work's lighter."

"Ay," agreed the barber, "but you dinna hae'tae help them on wi' their overcoats."

Air Brakes For Bombers

Are Necessary To Keep Diving Speed Within Reasonable Limits

There is no danger in great diving speed, be it as high as 600 miles an hour; the danger comes in the subsequent recovery and the large centrifugal forces developed in a curved flight path. When the diving speed is very high, the radius of the recovery curve must also be high; otherwise the centrifugal forces would be enormous. The airplane would be built to withstand such forces, but the pilot would suffer a blackout of his brain. Flaps or air brakes may therefore be used to keep the diving speed within reasonable limits. Without flaps, diving speed is high, the radius of recovery is large, the height from which the bomb must be released is considerable and the aim is uncertain. With wing flaps set up a combination of circumstances which is much more pleasing to the bomber—lower diving speed, small radius of recovery, release of the bomb fairly close to the ground; and greater certainty of hitting the target.—Scientific American.

Customers Are Not Entertained Any More By Talkative Barber

It has been remarked, says the Portland Oregonian, by our more serious observers, that the barber shop tradition has been altered in the conversational habit of the barber. There are few barbers nowadays who entertain their customers with a diversity of views on politics, pugilism, religion and baseball.

The loquacity of the barber was a justified jest in those times when the country editors called him "the lonesome artist." To-day these years of confidence and counsel must be invited by the customer ere they are offered.

If one sounds the barber one discovers that he is as well informed as ever, but mostly he doesn't choose to talk about it.

THE MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

Golden text: What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him? Matthew 8:27.

Lesson: Matthew 8:23-34; Mark 4:35-41; Luke 8:22-26.

Devotional reading: Psalm 19:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

Even the Winds and the Sea Obeyed Him. "If after a day of labor and excitement, the heavy, incessant demands upon him, evening came and found him spent and weary, Jesus needed but to say, 'Let us go unto the other side,' and the disciples did all the rest; they brought the boat to the nearest landing-place, and he stepped aboard and was their Passenger. Some of them were skilled fishermen as well as faithful friends, and he could trust himself to their hands. If the wind served, they would run up the sail; if not, they would, taking turns with the oars; and it pleased them well if, wearied with his work, and apothed by the multitude, he said the breeze upon the lake, he fell asleep, to awake only when the boat's keel grated upon the shingle at the place where he would be." (W. W. Bidey). Once, as all the Synoptic Gospels record the event, so violent a storm arose that the waves were filling the boat (Mark 4:37) in which Jesus and his disciples were crossing the lake of Galilee, and it so terrified the disciples that they came and awoke Jesus, crying to him, "Save, Lord, we perish," or as Mark (4:38) reports their cry, "Teacher, carest thou not that we perish?"

"Why are ye fearful?" asked Jesus, and then he answered his own question when he called them "Ye of little faith." After Jesus rebuked the wind and the sea and there was a great calm, the disciples marvelled.

Even the Demons Obeyed Him. Matthew 8:28-34. Here we have a picture of two men possessed of demons, who met Jesus as he landed on the opposite shore, in the country of the Gadarenes. Jesus dwelt in the tombs and was so fierce that no one dared pass that way. The demon cried out, "Jesus the Son of God, and inquiring, 'What have we to do with thee?' 'Art thou come hither to torment us before the time?' The fact that stands out here is the implicit belief of all evil spirits that were in the habit of taking possession of human beings and also of animals and the power of such events here despatched.

SELECTED RECIPES

SAVOURY STEAK
1½ lb round steak, 1" thick
1 tablespoon dry mustard
4 tablespoons Benson's or Canada Corn Starch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons pepper
2 tablespoons Mazola
1 cup sliced onion
1 carrot, medium size, diced
1½ cups canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon Crown Brand Corn Syrup
Temperature: 325 degrees F.
Time: 1½ hours.

Method: Nick edge of steak so that it will not curl in the pan. Mix together the mustard, corn starch, salt and pepper. Pound well into both sides of steak. Heat Mazola in roasting pan; sear both sides of steak. Cover with onion, carrots, tomatoes and corn syrup. Bake, covered, for 1½ hours. Serve four.

GRAHAM MUFFINS
½ cup Crown Brand Syrup
egg, unbeaten
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Mazola
½ cup seedless raisins, chopped
1 cup graham flour
1 cup sour milk
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
Temperature: 375 degrees F.
Time: 20 minutes.

Method: Measure corn syrup into mixing bowl; add unbeaten egg, salt and Mazola. Beat well; add raisins, graham flour and sour milk. Blend well; add sifted flour and soda. Mix; let stand five minutes. Pour into muffin tins oiled with Mazola. Bake in moderately hot oven. Yield: 12 large, or 18 medium sized muffins.

SHORTAGE OF NARCOTICS

According to an editorial which appeared in the current issue of The Canadian Medical Association Journal, one of the few beneficial effects of the war has been the improvement of the narcotic situation in Canada. Much of the improvement is due to the steady efforts of the Narcotics Division aided by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the editorial stated.

The war has created a shortage of narcotics for illicit dealers and in many localities there is a complete absence of outlaw distribution. Smoking opium is available at very high prices in certain areas but the illicit sources of morphine, heroin and cocaine have practically dried up.

The editorial warns physicians and druggists to exercise the greatest precaution in protecting their supplies of these drugs as well as in prescribing them. Drug addicts will resort to any cunning to obtain the narcotics. In Toronto, for example, it was found that within a few months 18 addicts using 34 different names had obtained 300 prescriptions for five different kinds of narcotics from 76 physicians.

With the increased scarcity of drugs, the prices on the illicit market have gone sky high. In one city the illicit price of a quarter-grain tablet of heroin for several months was $3.50. This means $14.00 a grain or more than $6,000 per ounce. "It is doubtful whether there is any other substance in existence, in relation to which there is such a tremendous variation between legal and illicit values," quotes the editorial from the federal report.

The reduction in the ordinary consumption of these drugs has been sharp; the editorial shows that the imports of cocaine for 1940 was 519 ounces—as compared with 2,192 ounces in 1939.

CHAPTER XII

Dr. Forrester, and the men from the mine, arrived simultaneously. Tamar saw that Christopher Sande, who was lying on an improvised stretcher, was unconscious. It was difficult to realize that this man with whom she had talked but a few short hours before now lay white and silent, righteously inert.

The doctor made a hasty examination, and Tamar stood by with a basin of hot water, towels and the little bag of sterilized implements. She had a faint sickish feeling as she watched the doctor at work and tried concentrating on the back of his head as he bent over Christopher. His deft fingers moved rapidly.

"His collarbone is broken and the abrasions on his skin will be dangerous unless all of the powder is removed at once." There was no need of anesthesia and the man did not stir during the entire proceeding of cleansing and dressing the wound in his right shoulder.

"I think he will be all right," Dr. Forrester spoke encouragingly just now. Randolph turned impatiently toward the stairway again. He must go and relieve Tamar. She looked a little white, and although she had studied a course in home nursing at Shatto Seminary, he knew that she could hardly bear to see any one in pain.

As Randolph entered the doorway of the room he heard the doctor say: "I'll give him something now to keep him quiet for an hour or so. He will be in pain, Tamar, when he comes out, but he's going to be all right in a few days. Just give him some of the pleasant Shadwell hospitality and some rays of sunshine from that smile of yours and he will convalesce nicely."

Tamar managed a weak answer: "We'll take good care of him." She needed to get out of doors and down to the edge of the Chesapeake. Without another word she turned and fled down the back stairs and out a side door.

With one accord the doctor and Knox Randolph looked at each other. "What happened?" Knox Randolph standstone and mocked him maliciously. "Tote!" And where did you pick up for Pete's sake, Ranny? I'll bet if your daddy heard you talk like that—"

"Now look here, Ranny Todd, if I'm good enough to play with you and tote rocks for your old water-fall and dam, then I'm good enough to help building. A girl's as good as a boy any time."

Just then he had deliberately dropped the rock in front of her, so that the mud had splashed all over her blue linen dress that Phoebe had asked her not to wear. She had cried with the fury of a 15-year-old.

Ranny once more. Why couldn't she get away from him? She had come down the stairs and out here over the beaten old path to replace the white face up there on the pillows with the memory of a tanned laughing one.

Tamar dropped down beside it on the soft green moss. Her slender hand reached out and she plucked a flower.

How long would Christopher stay here at Shadwell? A soft tremor ran through her body. His dark expressive eyes had held more than just casual interest in her conversation this morning.

"Faint he the good-looking thing?" Selby Sheridan, her best friend, had whispered to her at their first meeting.

"Why, why, no. He isn't at all handsome. Just got a lot of old Yankee personality, that's all."

"If you don't mind my being selfish, I'll claim him, here and now. Tamar! Remember—squatter's rights—or something." Selby had thrown her blonde curls and gone after him too.

Squatter's rights! Squatter's rights, indeed! In their bridge club the fairest of the daughters of Tahlanehka had already made him the chief topic of conversation.

"I saw him first," Selby was always wont to exclaim.

"My dear! This is not less year." Tamar remembered with chagrin her own remark: "I'm sure that the young man would be delighted to know that you're all going out for him!"

Daffodil Meriwell fixed her cold gray eyes upon Tamar and said: "My dear, you have all of the advantages. Just think! You could see him almost every day if you put your mind to it!"

"Daffy! Don't give her any idea!" cried another. "Being the owner of the Cricket Hill is bad enough. If he were smart he'd just marry her for her money."

Selby immediately rose defensively, and demanded: "Is this a bridge party, or did we just meet to do battle? I say, let the man choose." Two red cheeks burned in her cheeks.

Tamar had spoken melodramatically: "Please don't worry about me. I've given my heart to another!"

And now, returning to the moment she said to herself viciously: "I tried to fool myself from the start. Can I continue doing so with my right under my roof?"

Facing Heavy Task

Australia Belongs To New World Although So Far Away

Geography has put a heavy task on Australia. Here is a large segment of the white, English-speaking, democratic world set down in the middle of the teeming world of Malay and the Indies. The islands of Australia and New Zealand represent the antipodes to the United States, but though they are remote in space they are as close to us as Canada in spirit and experience—so close, indeed, that the wide ocean are between us is also an open frontier. It is easy for us to understand why the Australian Prime Minister turns to us for help against the common enemy. Australia, too, belongs to the New World; the deadly threat to its safety is like a threat to ourselves.—New York Times

Properly Trained Workers

Have Helped Speed Up Production In Britain's War Factories

Output of shell fuses cases in a British munitions factory has been increased twentyfold after industrial psychologists had suggested improvements in methods of working.

The job required careful hand-ordering of seams, and, as the factory had lost most of its inexperienced soldiers, the weekly output was only 1,000 good cases, with several thousand rejects. But after various changes of which the most important was a systematic training scheme based on careful study of hand and body movements, the output was raised to 20,000 cases a week, passed by the inspectors.

This is only one example of how trained psychologists from Britain's National Institute of Industrial Psychology have helped to speed up production in the war factories. Although the results are sometimes startling there is no particular magic about their job. It is based rather on a careful study of the physical movement entailed, on proper methods of instruction, and above all on interesting the trainees in the work.

Hours of wasted time have been saved merely by getting the trainees into the habit of arranging their tools around them in an orderly way and replacing them after use. Training is made interesting by interspersing handwork with general instruction so that trainees understand how their work fits into the general scheme. In tank factories, for example, they not only see their particular part assembled into the completed job, but are shown the tank in action.

Coil winding operatives trained by these methods were found to reach a standard of proficiency in only five days which previously had taken five weeks. Moreover, this was not achieved at the expense of output, for a 65 per cent. increase in the average output of good pieces was obtained, while the scrap rate fell from 5.2 per cent.—Robert Williamson.

Make Good Targets

Some Japanese Warships Have Important Quarters Above Deck

Students of the development of air power versus sea power express belief that Japanese battleships of the Kongo, Hongo and Nagato classes are especially vulnerable to aerial bombing.

And so they are watching with interest for further news of action by heavy bombing planes against Japanese capital ships in the Southwest Pacific.

The statement of former United States Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison that a certain streamlining of warships' armament would be necessary to reduce their vulnerability to bombing is considered particularly applicable to these older, pre-40,000-ton types of Japanese battleships.

Their construction featured a towering forecastle, around which was packed above-deck every conceivable station devoted to range-finding, observation, fire detection, navigation, communication, searchlight or torpedo control.

This enlarged a vital area as a target, and exposed important quarters to the devastating effects of a direct hit by high-explosive bombs.

A shell from an enemy gun might make a clean sweep entirely through the structure.

Light Of The South

Tea Rationed In Australia

In Meaning Of Shonan, Japan's New Name For Singapore

Singapore has been renamed Shonan, "Light of the South." The island will be known as Shonan Island and its great harbor district as Shonan Harbor. The name was decided upon by imperial headquarters with the approval of Emperor Hirohito.

"The 'Sho' was taken from 'Shonan,' which designates the Hirohito, em. 'Nan' means south," and newspapers said the free translation "Light of the South" emphasized the new role Singapore will play in becoming "the important center in the southern part of the East Asia sphere."

Look Out! A Sick Liver is Dangerous

Do you have persistent headaches and backaches? Are you tormented by rheumatic pains in muscles and joints? A faulty liver is clogging your whole system. Serious ill health may result.

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If unhealthy, your body lacks this energy and becomes enervated—youthful vim disappears. Again your liver pours out bile to digest food, get rid of waste and allow proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver goes out of order proper digestion and nourishment stop—you're poisoned with the waste that decomposes in your intestines. Nervous chronic pain arises from this.

You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. The whole system is affected and you feel "rummy," head-schy, backache, dizzy, tired out—a ready prey for sickness and disease.

Thousands of people are never sick, and have normal and lasting good health results. Today "Improved Fruits-Liver Tablets" are Canada's largest selling liver tablets. They must be good! Try them yourself NOW. Let "Fruits-Liver" put you on the road to lasting health—feel like a new person. 25c, 50c.

"Always In Pain, Now New Plan"

I suffered as I have from rheumatism and neuritis and could not walk upstairs or down stairs. After taking four days of the new plan, my hands and feet were better and I was able to climb a ladder. I have no more bother with rheumatism or neuritis. And, as a bonus, I feel like a new person. I have no more backache or headache and can do my housework without help. Mrs. E. Dodson, London, Ont.

"Sick For Years, In Hospital—Now New Plan"

I had a bad case of biliousness, constipation, headache, backache, I became nervous and irritable. I was in a hospital. Nothing helped me. I tried to get out of the hospital, but I was not well. I was in a very short time my troubles disappeared. Now I have no more backache or headache and can do my housework without help. Mrs. E. Dodson, London, Ont.

Two country editors abused one another shamefully. One was a great churchman, an officer and the one on whom the preacher called for prayer at every meeting. The other editor was not a church member and was the most artistic cussier you ever heard. His admirers said he could cuss a tune. Times got hard and the pious editor made an appeal to the community of church-going people not to patronize the man who took the name of the Lord in vain. The next week, the other editor said: "My good friend complains about my cussing. I know he prays loud and long and often. I know I cuss loud and often. God knows neither one of us means a word of it."

Local and General Items

The Editor will be glad to receive items for this section, regarding visitors entertained, parties leaving for holidays or short trips, bridge parties, teas, showers, presentations, anniversaries, etc. Phone items in to 11 or hand them in at The Enterprise office not later than Thursday evenings.

The Kingston Whig-Standard, Ontario, did a remarkably fine job in keeping the Victory Loan objective before its readers. It lowered its masthead on the front page to make room for a parade of tanks across the top. As each $200,000 was added to the subscriptions from Kingston and Frontenac, the newspaper added another tank. These were followed with the admonition: "Keep 'Em Rolling!"

"Germany can still win this war, and she is striving by every night to do so," declared Most Rev. Francis P. Carroll, Bishop of Calgary, in a letter to the Knights of Columbus in war rally. "It is our bounden duty to see that she does not. I have urged Catholics by word of mouth and by the printed word to do their full duty in this frightful struggle. It is unnecessary to prove civic and religious freedom are being challenged by the greatest menace of all time. Our enemies are out to destroy completely the Christian way of life."

Able will get that honorary degree if he stays with it.
